A Cyborg Manifesto: Science, Technology, and Socialist-Feminism in the Late Twentieth Century
by Donna Haraway
How to read critical theory that is over your head (or any kind of critical theory, really).

Signs that you’re reading critical theory: (Some) signs that you’re reading critical theory:

word-mashups

made-up words

verbose or obscure words in the place of simpler words (A kind of) structure:
definitions
eamples or illustrations insight
evidence related to insight call to action

feminism
What does feminism have to do with cyborgs anyway?
What do cyborgs have to do with everything else?
